- in 1872, the Smithfield area around Shude Hill and Thomas Street was transformed by the creation of the wholesale fruit, vegetable and fish markets. Situated in what is now known as the Northern Quarter. Smithfield (Smithfield Market Hall) was a cavernous structure filled with the vibrancy and chaos of goods being loaded and deals being made by the residents of the 1800's Manchester.*
- Smithfield Market Hall is now a renovated market hall on Swan Street, located just behind the hotel which now houses a food hall known as Mackie Mayor. The hall re-opened in 2017 after years of dereliction and is still there to this day.*
