Interesting facts about Eindhoven

The route of lights

In the early days after the war, the people of Eindhoven wanted to show that the light had returned to the city. After several attempts to put candles in the window, it was decided in 1947 to light fire points. Over the years, more and more fire points were added, until it was a route of 40 kilometers! It stopped in 1969, only to return again in 1984, this time with lights. The route has been 22 kilometers long for years and can be enjoyed from 18 September to 14 October. Wonderful thought!

Eindhoven is the greenest city of the five largest cities in the Netherlands.

Special designer in Strijp - S

The fact that Strijp-S is a lovely place to walk through is common knowledge, but have you ever noticed the Leidingstraat? It was designed by Piet Oudolf. Now that might not mean much to you, but this man also made the plans for the New York High Line. Pretty cool, right?
