This May, Oakville Galleries will present two exhibitions and two public sculptures by renowned international artists Ilya & Emilia Kabakov. A central feature of the exhibition is The Ship of Tolerance, an acclaimed global project that has sparked meaningful conversations about tolerance, respect, and inclusivity since its inception in 2005.

Marking the project's 20th anniversary and its first realization in Canada, The Ship of Tolerance at Oakville Galleries brings together over a thousand local children in the creation of the ship's sails—fostering dialogue and understanding among youth from diverse backgrounds. The ship's construction will also involve professional shipbuilders from Manchester, underscoring the collaborative spirit of this initiative. This ambitious project is made possible with the generous support of the National Gallery of Canada.

Together, the exhibitions and public sculptures at Oakville Galleries invite us to reflect on our shared future. Through the eyes and voices of children, The Ship of Tolerance asks us all: How can we build a better, more hopeful world?
