

Chor Bizarre

India's Restaurant

Every Indian city has its own chor bazaar, a thieves' market where all sorts of curios find their way—with or without the consent of their owners. Aisles are lined with everything from furniture to fabrics, posters to periodicals, carpets to cutlery. Antique jewellery jostles for space with vintage clocks and stereos amidst a maze of objects lost and found over generations. These chor bazaars capture the spirit of India in all its eclectic irreverence.

Our restaurant, Chor Bizarre, is playfully inspired by these markets. We coined the name with a pun on the word "bazaar" and "Chor Bizarre" was born in 1990, at the crossroads of Old and New Delhi.

At Chor Bizarre, we have hand-picked a collection of furniture, tableware and curios to catch your eye and explore beyond the boundaries of your own table. In the past, we have been called "a museum", "an attic", "really clever" and "quite eccentric" - all descriptions that we feel sum up the essence of Chor Bizarre. Part art, part kitsch, part imaginative, part contrived, the interiors of Chor Bizarre have been put together with India's finery, frivolity and sheer joie-de-vivre in mind. In our restaurant, nothing matches yet everything gels.

They say that you could travel the length and breadth of India and not repeat the same dish at any meal. Thus, any restaurant's claim to represent Indian cuisine in all its diversity would face a formidable challenge. So, just as we did for the décor, we have collected interesting recipes from different parts of the country to make your gastronomic journey complete.

While the emphasis is on North Indian cuisine, our menu features a large selection of chaat, street food and classics from across the country. Our chefs are amongst a handful who have access to the secrets of the Wazwan—the legendary Kashmiri community feast of 36 courses, from which selections are available.

Chor Bizarre celebrates authentic Indian cuisine in a setting that is unabashedly Indian.

TANDOORI

A style of cooking that was developed in the harsh and hardy North West Frontier Province and was spread by caravans travelling through the Khyber Pass from Samarkand. A development over spit roasting and barbecuing, the burning fuel was placed inside pots enclosed in earth, so that a little fuel could cook a whole meal.

Civilisation refined this creation of necessity into one of the most popular styles of cooking in the sub-continent.

KASHMIRI SPECIALITIES

From Kashmir comes the 'Wazwan', a magnificent feast which at one time serves guests a prodigious seventy-two courses. Kashmiri wazwans, where four guests sit on the floor around a large tarami in the traditional style and share the meal together. Today, for convenience, we offer a selection of twelve out of thirty six courses. At gatherings of family and friends, usually at a wedding, there is much ceremonial significance in the Wazwan - from the abundance of the host's table, to his guests complete participation in every course, the lifting of the lids on the Tarami placed before the guests with a single flourish and the deference due to the Vasta Waza' or Head Chef, assisted by his team of Wazas. Other than a few families of Wazas, the secrets of the Wazwan are known to a mere handful.

At Chor Bizzare, we bring you a taste of this banquet in the shape of the Tarami.

From our Wazas and Batt Wazas, who are proficient in Kashmiri Pandit cuisine, a more varied selection from the Wazwan can be served for larger groups with advance.

KASHMIRI TARAMI

All Taramis are served with Mooli Akhrot Chutney, Tamatar Mirch Chutney & Laal Pyaaz. Kashmiri Phirni & Kahwa are served at the end.
